"On the Study of Words"—"English Past and Presert."
By Richard Chevenix Trench, B. D., Dean of Westminister. New York,—Redfield Publisher.

We feel that we will be doing an acceptable service to the readers of the Intelligencer by calling their attention to two most interesting and instructive works, the titles of which we have placed at the head of this article. Among the recent issues of the press we know of none that will more richly repay a careful and attentive perusal. These volumes are certainly the most important and attractive contribution which we have lately had to English Philology. The importance of an intimate knowledge and commanding use of our English vernacular, cannot certainly be overrated. Language is not only a medium of communication but an instrument of thought. The extent of a man's vocabulary is the measure of his mind. In all intellectual effort we can proceed no farther than our vocabulary will convey us. It is this which limits the boundaries of thought, and sounds the depths to which we can attain. Our vernacular tongue is the instrument of all our other acquisitions, and we shall be successful in every other department of human culture ust in proportion as we shall extend the boundaries of our vocabulary, and deepen to our own minds the intensity of its meaning.

Our vernacular enters most vitally into the structure of our intellectual nature. It provides the whole contexture of our intellectual being, and determines, at the same time, the character and extent of our intellectual capabilities. If this be so, how all important is the study of our mother tongue in every system of intellectual culture! Other languages form subjects upon which the human mind may act, and about which it may speculate. They present the mind with facts and principles for the cognizance of the intellect, about which we may reason, and from which we may derive important items of knowledge just as we may from any other facts of nature or science, but our vernacular is the very instrument by which the mind acts, and which determines the power with which it shall apprehend any of the facts or principles either of Language, Science or Nature. In the light of these facts, we believe that the study of our mother tongue should be made, first, last and middle, in every system of Education. The study of foreign languages is important mainly as they illustrate our own, and tend to deepen the force and significancy of its words, and should always be conducted with a reference to this important end. For instance, in all our Grammar schools every recitation in Latin should be made an exercise in English Etymology and in English Composition. At any rate, we believe most sincerely, that if we are to develope in its true amplitude and full proportions, that Anglo Saxon nature which we inherit, we must begin to dig more deeply into the structure and significancy of our Anglo Saxon vernacular. We must study it not merely in its grammatical forms and present usages, but in its historical developments and etymological significance. Etymology is by far the most important part of Grammar, and words have a history which makes them translucent with their meaning, and in the light of which, instead of being mere dead symbols, they become living powers to the mind which employs them. To invest the language which one employs, with this character of vitality, should be the great object of every individual in that process of self-culture to which every human being is called. And this is to be attained not merely by being content with a knowledge of the present usages of the language, or the current meaning of its words. We must become convinced that the words of our vernacular have a deep root in the history and thinking of the race to which we belong, which gives them all their vitality, and makes thom efficient instruments in the awakening and development of our intellectual nature. The careful perusal of the volumes to which we have referred, will go far to produce this conviction in the mind of every thoughtful and attentive reader. We venture to predict that to every reader of this class, heretofore unacquainted with these works, their careful perusal will be the means of introducing him into regions of thought hitherto unexplored, and that they will raise before him intellectual lights not heretofore discoverable within the horizon of his mind. We are sure, at least, to use the language of Trench in one of these volumes, "that for a young man, his first discovery of the facts that words are living powers, (a discovery which he will make in these volumes,) will be like the dropping of scales from his eyes, like the acquiring of another sense, or the introduction into a new world: he will never be able to cease wondering at the moral marvels that surround him on every-side, and ever reveal themselves more and more to

As the Geologist reads the history of the earth, and infers the nature of the revolutions and convulsions which it has undergone, from the deposits which he finds embedded within it, so the Philologist finds embedded in Language deposites of the history and thought and sentiment of the race, which are fraught with a richer wisdom than all the wonders that Geology has to reveal to us. The perusal of these volumes will incite the inquiring mind to dig after these "hidden treasures," and will give him the key to unlock some of these store houses of wisdom. Let every young man, then, who reads the Intelligencer, procure a copy of these works and give them an attentive perusal, and our word for it, he will thank us for directing his attention to them.

But to the teacher especially, these works are invaluable. Besides the enlargement of his own mind, they will furnish him with many a suggestion, many an illustration, and an inexhaustible source of pleasing and useful instruc-

We anticipate great good from the wide dissemination of these volumes. They will teach us the interest we have at stake in the preservation of our language in all its purity and with all its distinctive characteristics. They will tend to arrest the hand of unwise and perilous innovation. They will go far to relieve us of that senseless lamentation, which is so common, over our "imperfect 'Alphabet" and our anomalous system of Orthography. They will teach us to accept of the language as we have it, subject only to its natural growth and development, as the most valuable inheritance of the race to which we belong, and the great instrument for building up a system of humanity, such as the world has neither yet seen or enjoyed. We therefore, commend these volunes most heartily to all the readers of the Intelligencer, being well convinced that the money and time expended on them will be regarded by them as well in-

Letter from the President. [By Telegraph.]

Below we have a telegraphic letter from President Buchanan, to Hon. Wilson McCandless, of Pittsburgh, by which it seems fixed, certain and sure, that he will not, under any circumstances be a candidate for the Charleston nomination .-So that now we have the matter settled in black and white, and those papers that have played upon this string will have to cease their music. As Mr. Buchanan made this declaration at the very outset, before he was elected to the Presidency, it is right and proper to believe that it was his cherished purpose, from the beginning, not to stand for re-election. But whether he at any time wavered or not makes but little difference, for he never could, since the first year o his term, have expected anything but defeat and humiliation from an attempt to compass a re-nomination. Perhaps the old man is like Johnny Sands, tired of the people-certainly they are tired of him. So that it seems to be fitting and well that the partnership should be dissolved by mutual consent, and with as much good will as their mutual jealousies will allow. The people have become weary of watching the old man, and slaughtering his projects, one by one, as they were sent in to Congress. Like the people of England towards their vacillating James, once upon a time, they want his place vacated-not his blood; they want Mr. Buchanan quietly to resign the sceptre when his time is out, and let them have rest from the troubling which they have experienced at the hands of his administration.

Mr. Buchanan no doubt realizes the feelings of the people in this matter, and realizing it, has properly determined to adhere to his first esolution.

THE LETTER.

PITTSBURGH, July 80 .- The following letter om President Buchanan was received this norning by Hon. Wilson McCandless: BEDFORD SPRINGS, July 25th, 1859-My Dear Sir: -I have received your kind note of the 19th inst., with the leader from the Post. Whilst I appreciate as it deserves the ability and friendship displayed in the editorial, I yet regret it been published. My determination not, under any circumstances, to become a candidate for reelection is final and conclusive. My best judgement and strongest inclinations unite in favor of this course. It is calculated to cast doubts upon my predetermined purpose and to impair my influence in carrying out important measures and afford a pretext for saying that these have been dictated by a desire to be renominated. With kindest regards, &c., I remain sincerely and respectfully, your friend, JAMES BUCHANAN.

THE Rev. Bellows' scheme for a new church, which we noticed at length in last Saturday's paper, seems to trouble the New Yorkers a great deal, and especially, to have an exciting import in the eyes of the Telegraphic man, inasmuch as the subjoined dispatch is the second one which we have received on the subject. Getting up a church these days, we thought was rather a common occurrence-pretty near as common as the springing up of "close corporations" and 'wild cat" institutions-and it really seems as if a new project of the kind oughtn't to create such a serious disturbance of the electric fluid as Bellows' "wild cat" is doing. Let poor Bellows get up his church, if he wants to and can get people to join it. It is his blessed privilege as an American citizen, especially as a New York Theatrical stock-jobbing speculator in the souls of actors and actresses. Christendom is now divided into several hundred sects, and by the progress which ramnification has made during the last fifty years, we may reasonably expect between this and the millenium to see every few miles of country, as among the old Romans, having its Lares and Penates-its "household gods."

Bellows' name is strikingly appropriate to represent a new "wild cat" concern. So let him

In the meantime, here is the dispatch:

NEW YORK, July 30 .- In relation to the new church scheme reported to be favored by the prominent Unitarian ministers, the Rev. Mr. Osgood makes a positive refutation of the Eveing Post's story concerning his connection therewith, in a spicy and sarcastic letter. He also explains the discourse of Mr. Bellows which gave rise to the report of his meaning having been misapprehended by, his using the word Catholic in the philosophic, instead of the ritual sense, nothing having been said by him to justify the statement that he favors any hierarchy or any revival of the old pageantry. In conclusion, Mr. Osgood says he shall be very glad to see a new Catholic Church of the true

For the type of Venitian beauty, says a writer in the Philadelphia U. S. Gazette, we must look among the lower classes, and there are found the prettiest women and maidens of Italy, perhaps of the whole world. Their hair is blonde, with a golden tint, and there are many who have black eyes with this fair hair. Their features are regular and delicate, their skin white and thin, their figures graceful, and their feet small. They have a nobleness of bearing which is often wanting in the ladies of the ar-

AN extraordinary case is before a Court at LIZZIE WAYT IN PITTSUURGH .- SHE COMPLAINS Brooklyn, N. Y., involving the good name and happiness of an interesting family. A lady came to Brooklyn five years ago, who represented herself to be a widow from Mobile. She had a mulatto boy with her, whom she represented as the child of a favorite servant. She was young and beautiful, and was wooed and won by a New York merchant, with whom she has lived happily, and given birth to two beautiful children. Recently the peace of the happy family has been broken by the appearance of a colored man from St. Louis, who claims that the woman is his divorced wife, and has sued for the recovery of the mulatto boy as his child. The lady denies the statement, and declares it to be a plot to destroy her peace; but the colored man insists that he shall bring abundant testimony from St. Louis to sustain his account in the matter. He says that he procured the divorce from her because of her infidelity to him, and that until recently, he supposed she had fled to Europe. While the suit is pending, the lady and her present husband are in great anxiety and

THE Police of New York have unearthed a Dr. Hankinson and Dr. Bland, has been living in elegance at No. 75 West Thirteeenth street, where he carried on a thriving business in dispensing love powders, obscene books, secrets or transmuting the baser metals into gold, and other fabulous schemes, at great pecuniary profit. There were found at his rooms love potions and love powders, magic amulets, and a hydrant whence flowed the fountain of youth, via the Croton Aqueduct. The love powder, which was to be held in the left hand by those who wished to win the affections of any person of the opposite sex, consisted of powdered slippery elm, packed up in tin foil. The gold proved to be a new composition called oreide, worth a fraction more than brass per pound.-There were also charms for all sorts of thingsagainst witchcraft, small-pox, children; and suicide-for falling in love, for falling out of love, for a wife, a husband, a lover, or a mis-

THE CONVENTION IN WHEELING-A WAIL FROM THE WHANGDOODLE.

[Extract from the Parkersburg News.] If reports are true, the Republican Presidential Convention is to be held in Wheeling.— Viewed in some lights we are sorry for this, while in others we are not. We regret that any portion of our Commonwealth has been found willing to allow the meeting of such a body in it. It proves a radical change of public opinion, or at least an intimacy of acquaintance, which we do not like. It is like any other evil, which at first we abhor, but soon grow to be willing to tolerate, and then ere long are ready to be led away with it. In 1856, when the first insignifi cant Republican Convention was held in Wheeling, this party was far weaker in the Panhandle than it is now. Then the Intelligencer had but just been purchased by its present owners, and commenced its insinuating, pretendedly moderate, but ever advancing dissemination o Freesoil doctrines. Now three papers out of the five printed in that section are with it in senti-Then this northern off shoot of sentiment was weak and peurile. Now it controls at least the Opposition party in that vicinity.— We regret, we repeat, that Freesoilism is growing-getting to be respectable, or at least is tolerated-in the Panhandle.

THOMPSON, the confectionery and restaurant man, in Broadway, New York, and a great chess player besides, has retired from business with an ample fortune, and one of the incidents that accelerated the retiracy, was that the proprietor of Taylor's saloon, near by, agreed to pay Thompson $4000 a year for ten years for that curious manœuvre. Thompson goes out with a half million salted -gained by three and twenty years of plodding industry, tact, and doing the correct thing. He and Morphy are great cronies. They Knight and rook, and pass in their checks with each other continuously .-Morphy looks upon him as about his toughest American customer, writes the New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Press.

The papers are indulging in speculations respecting the wheat crop, the present year. All the figuring in the world is but approximative PHOTOGRAPH LIKENESSES, when it relates to wheat, no really accurate statistics being in existence. The production of wheat in the several States for 1857 and 1858 may be stated thus: 1857, 180,000,000 bushels; 1858, 158,500,000 bushels. The crop of 1859 is variously estimated, but it is safe to place it at 200,000,000 bushels.

THE Rev. Mr. Bartlett, a twenty-eight-year old sensation Baptist preacher, has set the white chokered people at Brooklyn, N. Y., all agog, by having appeared in his pulpit a Sunday or two since, clothed in a white coat, vest and white breeches. Being a young chap of talent and pluck, he takes the responsibility of doing things on his "personal curve," or in other words, on his own hook.

PRIVATE ALANSON BENTLEY, who stole the horse and deserted from Fort Buchanan, has been sentenced by a court martial "to receive fifty lashes with a cow hide on the bare back, to be confined at hard labor until January, 1862, heavily ironed, to forfeit all pay due him, to have his head shaved, and to be branded with red hot iron with the letter D, to be drummed out of the service and receive a dishonorable discharge."

The London Athenaum is very savage upon recently published American book. It says: "The preface is the revolution of a phantasmagoric Christmas holiday wheel. The book is written as if with a bowie knife; it is all revolver, firing and brandy-smash."

THE way a Taunton (Mass.) husband treated poor chap he found in his wife's chamber after the light was blown out, was severe. He broke his nose, bruised his cheeks, tore out his hair, and kicked him down stairs. The course of true love never does run smooth, we really be-

OF THE WHEELING PAPERS-SHE UNBOSOMS HERSELF TO THE GAZETTE EDITORS.

[From the Gazette of Saturday.] We were honored yesterday by a call from Miss Lizzie Wayt, who presented us her card bearing her name in beautiful letters, and just below the two words in German text "Home Miss Wayt assures us that she is Lecturer." the most injured woman in the world; that the newspapers appear to have combined against her fair fame and good name, and that she is the victim of the most unfortunate circumstanc-She assures us that if she knows herself. she is not the person who took the $2,700 in Wheeling, but that it was done by some girl looking just like her and who has assumed her name, as she will abundantly prove in a few days. She intends at once to have the minature of the bogus Lizzie Wayt to be placed beside one of her own and prove thereby that she has been wronged.

Miss Wayt complained that we had written some things about her that were not so, and if we have we are very sorry. The Wheeling pa-pers are at the bottom of all this mischief. She assures us that she was considered a perfect 'phenomena" at Athens, Ohio, where she went to to shool and fitted herself for moulding the minds of youth; that she is heiress to a neat estate in Virginia; that she is considered one of the best The Police of New York have unearthed a shots in the country, and usually spends the precious "operator," who, under the names of hunting season on the "peraries;" that in four weeks from this time her shooting season will commence at Lake Cœur, near St. Paul.

What, however, above all, we wish to state is that she totally denies any knowledge whatever of the theft at Wheeling, and this she desired us to state. We have done so, and also add that she protested with many tears that some bad woman had perpetrated the theft in her name, and that she had to bear the shame. This is, indeed, hard, and we trust justice may speedily take place, the guilty be made to suffer, and the nnocent escape unscathed. So mote it he.

We might add that Miss Wayt is now about entering upon a course of training, preparatory to her debut upon the stage, where she says she intends to rank as a star of the first magnitude, and not as a common stock actress.

Wheeling Female Seminary FALL SESSION.

THIS Institution, under the superintendence of Mrs. S. R. Hanna, has risen to be one of the foremost schools in the country. It has grown in interest, usefulness and public favor steadily, until now, it is believed by its Board of Trustees, that it presents attractions to parents and guardians abroad such as few schools anywhere in the West can claim. The academic regime adopted and carried out has been the result of the carefully matured plans of a corps of efficient and experienced teachers, and every department of the course has been so thoroughly systematized that it is believed to be exactly adapted to every variety of capacity and every grade of progression among pupils. The situation of the school is beautiful and inviting, combining as great a number of advantages in point of health, scenery, accessfully and general convenience to boarders, as any school known to its Board.

The academic year is divided into two sessions of five months each. The next session will commence on the first Wednesday of September, and will close on the last Thursday of January.
